

UPCH-UW WORKSHOP - Helping Our Students Learn: Considering New Approaches and Methods

In March, the Universidad Peruana Cayetano Heredia (UPCH) hosted the Workshop “Helping Our Students Learn: Considering New Approaches and Methods.” Organized by the School of Public Health at UPCH and University of Washington (UW) in Seattle, and sponsored by the Fogarty International Center and the Fulbright Commission, this Workshop provided UPCH faculty members from diverse disciplines with the opportunity to reflect on teaching practices and challenges so as to improve skills in the classroom.

UPCH invited three educators from UW – Ann Downer, Virginia Gonzales, and Karen Freisem – to share their knowledge and to explore how to improve learning for students in public health, nursing, medicine and other health science courses at UPCH and UW. This course helped strengthen the ongoing and long-term collaboration between UPCH and UW.

UW educators Karen Freisem and Virginia Gonzales (Fulbright Senior Specialists), and Ann Downer presenting a Certificate of Participation to Patricia Garcia, Dean of the School of Public Health at UPCH

Karen Freisem, Fulbright Senior Specialist, leading workshop participants in a teaching exercise

UW educators and workshop participants from the Schools of Public Health and Administration, Medicine, and Sciences and Philosophy.